MANGALORE UNIVERSITY

CULTURAL POLICY

2023

Preface

Prof. P. Subrahmanya Yadapadithaya
Vice Chancellor

I am delighted to present to the world of culture an important document that has been prepared under my guidance: the Cultural Policy of Mangalore University.

It is an abiding truth that Mangalore University has always been pro-active in matters of importance: be it the implementation of the National Education Policy 2020 (NEP), or the publication of Gender Policy, Sports Policy, and now the Cultural Policy (perhaps all of them Karnataka-firsts) - all bear testimony to the progressive spirit and stance of Mangalore University.

The culture of India, passed down from one generation to the next, is the sum total of a heritage of excellence in diverse realms. It is this cultural wealth that the NEP has described as "a treasure trove of culture, developed over thousands of years... that truly makes India, 'Incredible India.'"

In the words of the NEP, "the preservation and promotion of India's cultural wealth must be considered a high priority for the country, as it is truly important for the nation's identity as well as for its economy." The NEP goes on to state that "cultural awareness and expression are among the major competencies considered important to develop in children, in order to provide them with a sense of identity, belonging, as well as an appreciation of other cultures and identities."

It is in the light of these thoughts, and as an extension of its commitment to the NEP under my watch, that Mangalore University has thought it fit to enunciate this Cultural Policy. This Policy is being published after receiving approval from the various authorities of the University and also being placed in the public domain on the University website-in order to elicit responses from the public, which have been incorporated into the Policy.

I am thankful to the Committee constituted to come up with a draft of the Policy and the hard work done by its members in finalizing the Policy document.

I have no doubt that the Policy will enable Mangalore University to take steps to improve the accessibility of students to culture and to promote the artistic, musical, ethnic, literary and other expressions of all students and stakeholders in the University. The salutary spinoff here will be the harnessing of India's cultural wealth for the evolution of the student and stakeholder as a moral being equipped with the competence to contribute to the moral and economic fabric of the nation.

Preamble

The plurality and multiplicity of Indian culture is well known. India has a distinguished heritage of excellence in scripture, spirituality, philosophy, yoga, health practices, environment protection, dress, food, art, literature, music, dance, theatre, sculpture, architecture, folk arts, artifacts, festivals, sports, cinema, painting, languages and dialects, customs, belief systems, and so on, which constitute the culture of India. It is this way of life of an entire society, passed down from generation to generation, which constitutes Indian culture. Culture is born of the life of the people of India, fed by the deep well-springs of our national consciousness since times immemorial, even when much of the world was steeped in darkness. It is this cultural wealth that the National Education Policy 2020 (NEP) has described as "a treasure trove of culture, developed over thousands of years... that truly makes India, 'Incredible India'." Hence, in the words of the NEP, "The preservation and promotion of India's cultural wealth must be considered a high priority for the country, as it is truly important for the nation's identity as well as for its economy."

It is well-established that culture does not exist without people. Today, in addition to the family, institutions of higher education such as universities are deeply invested in people and in the culture that binds people together. The twin tasks of the university today are to further scholarship and to educate the young, which can happen only when the student is grounded in her/his cultural heritage and milieu. It has been widely accepted that the main task of universities is the preservation, promotion and transmission of culture. It is in our campuses, as much as in our homes, that students go through a process of learning through socialization and engagement. Therefore, universities should provide its students not only the normal intellectual training and professional orientation geared towards employment but also a cultural environment that is designed to familiarize them with their cultural heritage and at the same time shape their moral values. This would help tide over the twin difficulties of 'cultural vacuum' and 'cultural lag', both of which are seen as detrimental to societal well-being.

It may be noted here that the NEP has rightly pointed out that the "promotion of Indian arts and culture is important not only for the nation but also for the individual. Cultural awareness and expression are among the major competencies considered important to develop in children, in order to provide them with a sense of identity, belonging, as well as an appreciation of other cultures and identities." Underpinning these thoughts of the NEP is the belief that such knowledge of their own traditions is important for students to build a "positive cultural identity and self-esteem" and thereby to promote cognitive development, creative ability and happiness.

In the light of these facts, Mangalore University deems it appropriate to take steps to improve the accessibility of students to culture and to promote the artistic, musical, ethnic, literary and other expressions of all students in the University. Towards this end, the University must take steps to ensure that all students have the opportunity to participate in cultural life and to ensure that creativity, diversity and artistic quality become integral parts of their personal growth and socio-economic development.

For this purpose, it must also identify areas of action in terms of Academics, Programmes, Training and Research in such avenues of culture as literature, fine arts, dance, music, cinema, theatre and many others. Through such efforts the University must provide opportunities to students to immerse themselves in a cultural environment that connects them with the cultural heritage of our nation. Thereby, the University must ensure the evolution of the student as a moral being who can face the challenges of life with equanimity and contribute to the strengthening of the moral and economic fabric both at the individual and national levels.

Therefore, there is a need for the University to enunciate a Cultural Policy which would take the shape of a body of operational principles, inclusive of clearly enunciated objectives and guidelines, as well as the necessary administrative and budgetary practices and procedures, which would provide a basis for cultural action by the University. Hence, this Policy.

Objectives

1. To bring culture to young minds by allowing education to inculcate a sense of belonging to society, a notion of national identity, individual pride and self-worth.
